CHILD S.D.F. WAIVER POLICY.

Imagine embarking on a remarkable family adventure to Bhutan, a destination that truly understands the importance of catering to travelers of all ages.

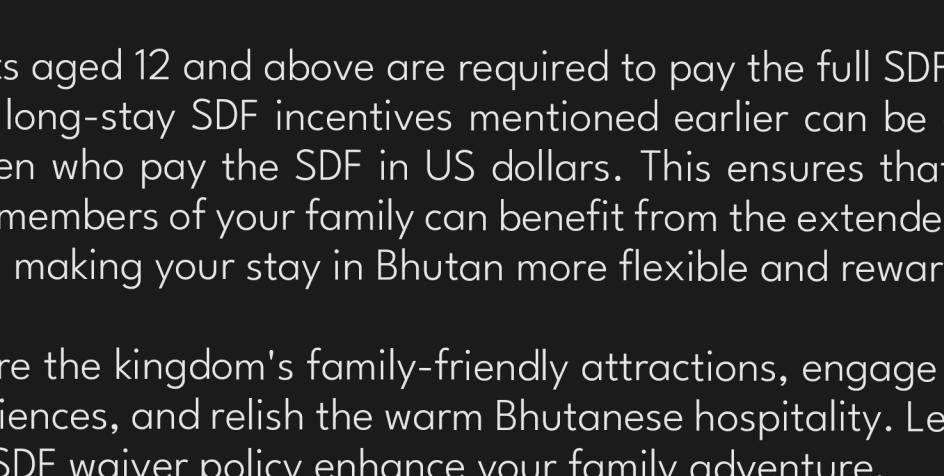

Bhutan has implemented a thoughtful policy to ensure that families like yours can fully embrace the journey together.

Bhutan's child SDF waiver policy allows your little ones to join in the exploration and discovery, free from the burden of additional fees.

As you plan your Bhutanese escapade, you'll be delighted to know that children aged 5 years and below are exempt from paying the Sustainable Development Fee (SDF). The little ones can join in on the excitement without any additional charges, allowing them to immerse themselves in Bhutan's wonders fully.

Everyone, from the littlest explorers to the grown-ups, can make the most of this extraordinary destination.

Note: The SDF waiver applies only to those visiting Bhutan on a tourist visa.

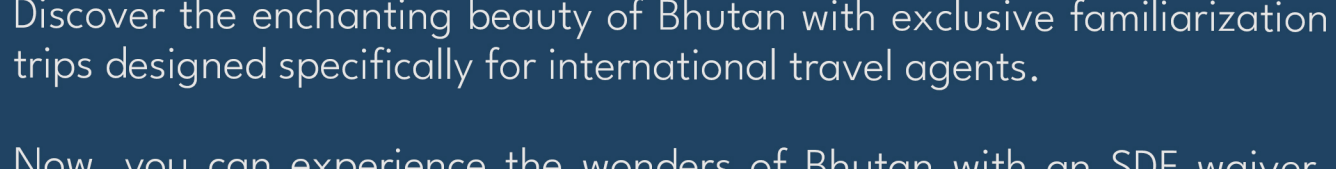

For children between the ages of 6 and 12, Bhutan offers a special concessionary levy rate of 50%. You can enjoy significant savings while allowing your children to explore the country's rich culture, breathtaking landscapes, and fascinating traditions. It's a win-win situation for the whole family!

Guests aged 12 and above are required to pay the full SDF rate. The same long-stay SDF incentives mentioned earlier can be applied to children who pay the SDF in US dollars. This ensures that even the older members of your family can benefit from the extended duration perks, making your stay in Bhutan more flexible and rewarding.

Explore the kingdom's family-friendly attractions, engage in cultural experiences, and relish the warm Bhutanese hospitality. Let Bhutan's child SDF waiver policy enhance your family adventure.
